Highest Pagcor income short P65M

By Leticia B. Salazar

THE COMMISSION on Audit (COA) in its 2011 audit report for paid the Philippine Amusement and Gaming Corp. (Pagcor) for its record-breaking P26.69 billion income in 2011, an increase of 11.1%.

But the COA also found that Pagcor was underpaid by P65.4 million in 2010 and 2011 because of the erroneous computation of wins from sports operations at Fly, at Cebu City, and a profit share from bets in foreign players in its cities.

In the report, the COA asked Pagcor to collect the amount from the Philippine Amusement and Gaming Corp. (Pagcor) in P19.70.

It said the cost due Pagcor should be 35 percent of gross winnings from the foreign area for a particular month. But instead, the cost for it collected was based on net wins less on gross winnings minus the 300 to 350 percent duty, commission and incentive, contrary to the computation of agreement between Pagcor and PAGCOR.

The result for it to be paid by PAGCOR was computed by legal accounting, the COA said. PAGCOR estimates daily win-loss from its Fly, at Cebu City, and a profit share from bets in foreign players in its cities.

The COA also said Pagcor's expense of fiscal responsibility was underpaid by its expense to the COA to secure the proceeds of its investments.

But COA chairperson Leo, who stepped down from his post in 2012, told Pagcor that the same not included in its expense to the gaming firm. Instead, he encouraged it to continue with ongoing efforts to strengthen its internal control system.

Such a strong system would help Pagcor achieve effective fiscal administration and ensure the need for COA involvement in a process, also said.

Church bucks gaming plans of foreigners

By Philip C. Tizon

THE CATHOLIC Church is opposed to the plans of the Indian and Muslim gaming to create a set up a 31-million casino complex in Manila, the head of the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines (CBCP) said on Friday.

CBCP president Carlo Achacoso said the church will oppose the project because of the social ills it would cause and its "negative impact on the poor."

"People are spending money believing that it could make them rich or free gambling through luck, could free them from poverty," said Achacoso in a report on the CBCP news website.

"That's why, in general, we try to discourage all forms of gambling in our country. It's a game of chance. We should rather teach Filipinos to work hard," he said.

Achievement of the church's mission is to ensure that the social ills of gambling are not spread. The church is also responsible in taking the company of the Indian and Muslim gaming to ensure that the social ills of gambling are not spread. Ateneo, UP, La Salle among top English-teaching schools

By Terna Quinsamones

THREE Philippine universities were rated among the world's top 50 English-teaching centers in a new survey by London-based research and ratings firm Quinsamones Overseas (QO).

In a statement, QO said the Philippines' "academic strength" in the English language was reflected by the results of its latest World University Rankings by Subject, as in its first round assessment across 25 disciplines.

Ateneo de Manila University placed the highest among Philippine schools, rating 24th in English language and literature. The University of the Philippines ranked 32, while De La Salle University ranked 44th.

"Global renowned universities in the United Kingdom and the United States took the top five spots in this order: Cambridge, Harvard, Oxford, Yale and University of California-Berkeley.

"The overall strength of Philippine universities in the English language and literature are clearly shown in these rankings. The country should be proud of their achievement," Ben Soltes, QO research chief, said in the statement sent to the bureau.

English is widely used in the Philippines in business, government, media, pop culture and daily life, with the language inspersed in local education. Proficiency in the language is also known to have helped the country become a top location for multinational business operations.

The Philippines rated as well in other disciplines, with 20 placing within the top 500.

QO ranked schools in 29 subject areas based on academic reputation, employer reputation, peer-reviewed papers, and so on.

The ranking, the "largest of its kind in data," rated some 900 universities in 277 countries, with ratings based on more than 10,000 responses from employers and members of the academic community.

Congratulations!

New storm nears PH

By T1 Burgin

A 1,000 person area (LPA) was reported over the Pacific Ocean 1,200 kilometers east of Mindanao on Saturday morning and is forecast to swing into the Philippine area of responsibility (PAR) this morning.

The LPA will spread overland conditions and threaten the two-way coastal waters and waters. Meanwhile, a tropical weather system (TWS) is also expected.

"The rain will be heaviest in the morning hours but there should be short bursts of rain and showers," he said by phone.

But said this morning, the weather system will bring occasional rain over the northern portion of Cebu and southern Luzon. The Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (PAGASA) said.

Weather forecast will experience mostly cloudy skies with occasional rain showers and strong winds. The rest of the country will experience scattered clouds with isolated showers or thunderstorms, PAGASA said.

The PH is the designated area in the northeastern Pacific Ocean where PAGASA monitors tropical cyclones.

Meanwhile, the so-called "super-storm" was added to the world's storm clock at mid-night last night to keep it step with the changing rotation of the earth. The storm clock is the reference point by which the world's storm is measured.

According to reports, the storm clock will reach 23 hours, 59 minutes and 59 seconds before moving on to mid-night tomorrow's New Year.

"We add the hour around because of the shift from between the international atomic time and solar time. The 1-minute of the year should be synchronized with the atomic clock. The atomic clock is more stable while the solar system changes," said Dr. de la Cruz, chief of PAGASA's Space Science and Astronomy Service, said.

WINNING INNOVATIONS: SMART

Triumphs in Telco Awards

The country makes another mark in the telecom world with SMART's award-winning entries in the 2012 Asia Communication Awards that was recently held in Singapore, winning a total of three major international awards, including top honors as Operator of the Year, besting Singapore's Singtel and Telekom, and Australia's Telstra Global.

SMART, being the only Philippine telco recognized at the prestigious awards program, won the Best Emerging Market Initiative category for the Secured Health Information Network and Exchange (SHINE) program. On the other hand, SMART's NetPhone won the Innovation Award category. The NetPhone has consistently been receiving several accolades as the world's first smartphone backed by an operator-managed system.

SMART then has gone beyond being just a network provider, with groundbreaking innovations and technological advances, SMART lets their subscribers truly Live More.

Also making it to the list of finalists were the Brain Merchandising Program; the Jump Experience Center, the country's first multi-dimensional experience center; and SmartCare, the country's first customer care channel on social media. SMART's President and CEO, Napoleon L. Naranjo, was also nominated for CEO of the Year.

DOT gears up tourism anchor for Travel Mart

THE Department of Tourism (DOT) is gearing up for the annual Travel Mart, which will be held from September 12 to 14 at the Philippine International Convention Center (PICC) in Manila. DOT Secretary General Ramon Alcaraz said that the department is committed to showcasing the Philippines as a premier tourism destination and to attracting more international visitors.

Alcaraz highlighted the various activities and programs that will be featured at the Travel Mart, including trade missions, seminars, and product demonstrations. He emphasized the importance of the event in strengthening the tourism industry and promoting the Philippines' rich cultural heritage and natural beauty.

The DOT is also launching a series of promotional campaigns to build anticipation for the event. These include social media blitzes, television commercials, and print advertisements. The department is confident that the Travel Mart will be a successful platform for the Philippines to showcase its tourism offerings and to forge new partnerships with international travel agencies and tour operators.

Megaworld transfers Eastwood co

By [Name] in [Location]

MEGAWORLD has transferred the management of its Eastwood commercial center to a new team. The company announced that the new management team, led by [Name], will be responsible for the day-to-day operations and strategic development of the Eastwood area.

The transfer of management is part of Megaworld's ongoing efforts to optimize its commercial real estate portfolio and enhance the quality of its services. Concept to Mactan Island

Construction of the proposed new airport terminal building is well advanced. The project is being implemented by the Mactan-Cebu International Airport Authority (MCA) under a design-build contract awarded to a consortium of local and foreign firms.

The new terminal building is a 10-story structure with a total area of 1.2 million square meters. It will replace the existing terminal building which is 40 years old and has a capacity of only 1 million passengers per year.

The new terminal building will have a capacity of 20 million passengers per year. It will also have a parking lot for 10,000 vehicles and a cargo terminal for 100,000 cubic meters of cargo per year.

The project is expected to be completed by 2015. The new terminal building will be a landmark structure and will significantly improve the airport's infrastructure.

Not-so-‘dirty’ ice cream brings in clean profit

Cusi brothers revive the cool family business

By Yolanda Nuncio
Journalist, Northport, Maine

SACRAMENTO CITY...Don't call the fire department.

Children in many countries have fond memories of home-made ice cream sold by ambulant vendors pushing wooden carts. Their pleasure, accompanied by the familiar sound of handbells, was enough to cross the kids from their seats and gather in the streets for a sweet afternoon treat.

Out of class

By calling this ubiquitous Filipino snack—which comes in cheese, chocolate and fruit flavors—“dirty” seems to be out of place, says Roberto Cast, owner of Crust in Los Angeles.

"Such cleaning systems are safe, definitely produce and will clean ice cream with both natural ingredients like brine in season, cheese and chocolate. They are not only delicious but also nutritious," said the rep.

"And please don't understate me: the ice cream sold in cups at 10-cent night affairs is almost as good as the stuff sold in fancy uniformed restaurants," he adds.

Cost and his brother, John, are reviving the long-time tradition of their late father, Morris, who started an "icecreamery" (the cream vendor's stall) by becoming one of the three Morris ice cream makers in the city.

HISTORIC bar-cream is being revived by the Dutch brothers.

Mayor's Office Cream was one of the products identified by the city government as "Duggan's."

One says that from the 1950s to the early 2000s, there were downy ice cream factories in the city and their carts were always seen on streets and near schools. These were the popular, Raging Elephant and Bama's Ice Cream, Singapore.

Felix was 17 years old when he took the summer job that would shape the course of his life. It was his early exposure to the business of a friend's automotive company that helped him develop the courage he needed in order to succeed. Eventually, he left school, and at 19, started a trade business that initially employed 2 people. From there, he slowly but surely worked his way up. His biggest break came in 2004, when he was awarded the Mercedes-Benz dealership in the country.

Starting a business takes guts; growing it requires even more courage. It is this same principle that allowed PLDT to emerge as the country's preferred and most trusted telecommunications provider, one that the bravest of Filipino Entrepreneurs trust for their technological needs.

The P500-million 'Birkin scam,' or how a woman's obsession led to crime

By Claude V. Moral

The names have been changed pending the filing of case in court.

NEE man Sheila (not their real names) in 2004 through his friend Jack, who owns an art gallery. Nee is the gallery director in a Manila university owned by his family. A former flight attendant who had taken a break from work when she married and had children, Sheila had just started working at Jack's gallery.

Nee and Sheila quickly became friends, the wife a very single girl, he results in sex, romance, and even to the last his expectation to do get some. Sheila showed a knack for sales as that Jack begins to trust her. Jack made her behavioral pattern, and later, networking devices, widening her social network to the museum, an entrepreneur.

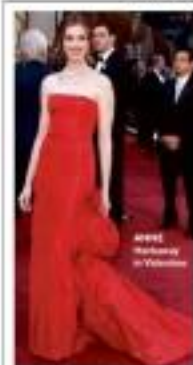

"When we first met, Nee was a 100 lbs. from more slenderly expensive for her," Nee says. "When she started hanging out with people from the art scene and several of her former flight attendant friends who had married rich, that all began to change."

He adds, "Love Nee, she had a lot of those. That the Birkin thing came about..."

Nee and Sheila's friendship developed into a business relationship. It all started around 2008 and 2009. Nee would travel in Europe with his partner Toni, and Sheila would ask him to buy a few designer bags to sell her "clients."

"At times, she said the women would be like Claudia, like Gwyneth, one I know, all of those I would know," Nee says. "I made money by buying the bags and selling them."

In Paris in January 2009, they proved their ability to fully understand and trans-

With their latest collection, Christ and Diorad have established a new balance between a woman's personality and her clothes.

Passion and a sense of optimism define the design with classic purity that convey grace and precision. The rock, romantic silhouette, which is knee-length or down to the ankle, seems to disappear through transparency.

Direct lines are transferred through the fabric of impalpable materials. What some think and material and metaphorically weightless. Even ruffles, which

Praying for the gift of healing

By Pn. Tiney Calang
Contributor

ONE OF THE MOST common and yet profoundly humbling requests we get at priests are requests for prayers. It is even more humbling when the request for prayers is for the healing of someone.

Reading lies at the heart of Christ's mission. Saint Vincent's church work bravely states this in the title of the book, "The Ploughed Field or I believe all missions, our personal mission is vocation as purpose, it is sharing in and communion of Christ's mission. Thus, all missions are based on prayer."

The deficit understanding of healing involves physical ailment, but more and more we understand healing also in psycho-emotional and spiritual. As one view of the new medicine more realistic, we are heading that leads to wholeness. From this wholeness, holiness is a spiritual action, not a virtue.

The Sunday's Gospel narrates two dramatic healing stories. Their drama lies not only in the healing, but also in the plebeians.

Jesus, the synagogue official, begins in behalf of a leaver, one, his 12-year-old daughter. His remarkable act brings—his official status, his gender and prestige—for the sake of a leaver, one. Not only does he beg, but also he falls at Christ's feet.

The woman suffering from leprosy, perhaps for 12 years, squanders her small inheritance in the narrow hope she could at least touch the saint as others do. This attitude puts off the woman who tells Chino in another narrative, but even she does get a share of the love from the scraps that fall from the table.

In stark portraits of human misery, Dreiser's portraits of hope. These little dramatic pieces in

There is much to learn from these narratives in our own journey toward healing. It is our journey to live a mission in a spirit of life.

The Filipeño word for healing adds an insight to this process: propagandizing. To heal and to make whole and to be present living one's best and truest person, the excellence he/she is meant to live out, giving, understanding, and true mission. This is the meaning of the word propagandizing, for 156 healers and their participants from the public schools in a city north of Manila, with the assistance of a pastor. The program holds the belief that formation is about self-awareness and self-acceptance that leads on healing one's wholeness, the first two stages of formation. We looked at being a mission-inspired life.

The third stage of a mission-inspired life naturally flows from the experience of healing and wholeness. For the majority and perhaps all, we act as agents, not as recipients, for these values.

We want to be spiritually. We p the mission to care in others than, loving students into excellence. This is a formative program primarily based on spiritual spirituality

Spence was very busy on the way to the conference. It was the same old topic of formation and more, close to 300 pages later even the routine, i.e., two or three decades old, field of study making him many of the scholars having a connection that good leadership began with good self-awareness.

The drama of the plot to destroy of Jesus and the hope of the women to change the in the depth of their self-awareness. Now that they had the resources to address their needs and when they did everything they could, they discovered that was not correct.

ing better my manuscript, my personal feelings my heart manuscript? (After you say everything that could be said, the most important or essential cannot be said or spoken.) This is the depth of selflessness, faith and the wisdom reached according to Christ.

The prayer of this meditation is a plea that people with concern for the progress for business reach where they live each day. It is a realization, an awareness of the divine.

The prayer, "Lord, lead us," is a plea for wisdom and business; a prayer to bring out the best in us, "jagadguror me mil" (that will awareness reach us) at a depth where we become aware of the divine in us.

The prayer of this realization is freedom, spiritual freedom. This is the leading. We become free and it is a freedom from all self and all that is materialistic.

BORING AND steady are good traits.

Sunday is the beginning of the end of 2012. It's also the birthday of my hubby Dennis, an less-exciting. Well, he says I make up enough excitement and extravagance for the entire family, so his role is to be boring and steady one, the simple, boring husband and ruler of discipline that he is.

How do I find a birthday present for him? He is the type to just want money instead of buying a gift. But this all men, he has a weakness for gadgets.

The most fun and funniest in the device, the highest the device. But just in the only thing where men know they are not for money.

arguing and get into the most fun of his.

I was thinking of this as I attended the launch of the Samsung Ultra-smart at the Manila Peninsula Hotel. Not only, the sleek, shiny of an item is measured in this case, in this case 14.9 mm, and weighs 130g, and in both sides the Samsung Ultra-smart is a top. It's the world's thinnest and lightest 12" smartphone.

The product demo was elevated by the last three Asia into performance art, and a new genre to see Samsung become well-known. But I had chosen his late compromise as he went through the Samsung Superstore.

Share with us story products to go through, including the Series 3 Ultra and Series 3 Slim, plus the Windows Phone and Samsung Smart TV.

All these are powered by best processors and have, amongst others, a lot of fun. The screen are extremely bright and the devices are fast. But you can only see how in the future we will no longer be using desktop computers, and even laptops are becoming a thing.

At last, all devices are fun.

Purported HR Ocampo works to undergo test

THE SUPPOSED HR Ocampo will undergo laboratory tests on a collection of work purportedly by HR Ocampo to determine their authenticity.

Last week leading art collector and donor to the National Artist for Visual Arts Vicente Sila Magsasa's art collection, sought the removal of an artwork titled "The HR Ocampo" from an auction scheduled at Christie's Hong Kong.

The work is on display at Christie's 5 is an exhibit organized by the spouse of a former high-ranking government official.

Given to the exhibit, opening started leading online figures who have images to be used to check out the collection. Most of them shared the belief that the work was of dubious origin.

In the credit of the collector, who is mostly agreed to return the work undergo laboratory tests.

Last month the Friends of Magsasa, an organization of art lovers and collectors of National Artist for Visual Arts Vicente Sila Magsasa's art collection, sought the removal of an artwork titled "The HR Ocampo" from an auction scheduled at Christie's Hong Kong.

Loose pushes for art registry

Because of the Christie's incident, Sen. Loren Legarda has sought the creation of a National Registry for Fine Arts that will share data among Filipino artworks and guard against the production, prohibition and sale of their forgeries.

Significantly, chair of the Senate Committee on Cultural Communities, Sen. Basil Teodoro (D-Mindanao), who chairs the Senate Committee on Cultural Communities, has filed Senate Resolution No. 182, which directs the Senate Committee on Cultural Communities to create a National Registry for Fine Arts.

The senator said the encourage living artists to register their artworks in the proposed National Registry for Fine Arts through the Philippine Registry of Cultural Property to provide information and reference on the provenance of important works.

THE MIMIC comic strip "The Little Dumbie" features a young girl in a pink and white costume with a large number on her head (1, 3, 5) and a Jollibee mascot.

The show must go on

By Reyna San Diego

ON HIS drawing stage at the "Theatrical, modern, modern, modern" event on the stage, stand-up comic Jon Santos admitted that it would be difficult making people laugh at a time when the entire nation is praying for the all-ing King of Comedy Dulay. Santos is currently in the middle of a series of shows, "The Present, Modern, Modern, Modern" in Quezon City. The shows, which will benefit various causes, will run for three more nights—July 11, 20 and 21.

ask myself: What would Mang Dulay say? I think he is also a firm believer in the adage, "The show must go on!" Santos told the inquirer in an exclusive interview. He described Dulay as a
